FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ABOUT REGISTRATION

For a complete list of FAQs please visit: olli.uconn.edu/frequently-asked-questions

Do individuals who register online have an advantage?

Yes and No. The registration start date is determined to allow paper registrants to mail their forms and have them reach our offices before the start of registration. Under normal operations, OLLI staff begin processing paper registrations on the same date and time online registration opens. Walk-in registrations do not provide members with priority registration.

Online registration does provide efficiency and peace of mind and it is normally available to you 24/7. When registering online, you can know immediately if a course has availability and you receive immediate confirmation of registration. The ease of credit card payment is another advantage.

Lifelong Learning and Course Choice . . .

The Lifelong Learning Movement provides many opportunities for engagement, socialization, and acquisition of new knowledge. Brain researchers emphasize the need to challenge ourselves (trying something entirely new) in order to maintain brain health and build new neural pathways. In that spirit, we wish you adventure when selecting courses and activities at OLLI at UConn.

Course Registration at Lifelong Learning Institutes . . .

Registration processes in lifelong learning programs have been the subject of significant discussion at national meetings. The consensus is that creating a completely “fair system” for registration is not possible. In lifelong learning institutes, the course offerings are as unique as the presenters who design them. As a result of course uniqueness and volunteer instruction, merely adding additional sections of a course, as they reach capacity in a given semester, is often not possible. Course enrollment maximums are established based on presenter requests, classroom availability, fire code capacity, and University policy. If space allows and with permission of the presenter, we do expand course enrollments and sections. We also move courses to different rooms, prior to the semester, depending on final enrollment count. OLLI at UConn provides first-come, first-served registration. There are many variables that impact registration including the date the post office delivers your brochure, how many registrations are received in a given day, and the random order in which mail is stacked by the postal service. Please remember to use the wait list option, too.

Is there a fair system for registration?

No. There are so many variables that impact the registration process that lifelong learning institutes may always grapple with this elusive goal of fairness. Some LLIs have moved to a “lottery system” for registration— this is complex and still does not make everyone happy.

If I hand-deliver the registration will I be given priority?

No. During peak registration periods, your registration will be placed in queue along with mail-in registrations. OLLI at UConn does not have a “service window” and does not process registrations on-demand during the traditional registration periods.
